Subject: application senior research executive, reference number: egrmlsreq1

Dear mr. Galvin,

I was exceptionally interested to see your advertisement on workthing.com and wish to apply for this post. You will find from reading my enclosed resume that I have all the qualifications you demand of a senior research executive.

In my first working experience at Shropsher Ltd., I was promoted from client relationship assistant to client relationship team member after only 7 months, due to my high degree of motivation. I spearheaded a project which helped to improve and customize the long-term relationships with clients. My employers valued the way I proactively enhanced the services to clients.

My professional achievements with an international banking company Deacon and Bright over the last five years reflect my ability to transform ideas and concepts into action. I was responsible for developing and executing a successful sales strategy for investment management services, based on a study conducted with the latest CATI technology. In that capacity, I have had the opportunity to research and write substantial reports on new investment products in different regions. Furthermore I have collaborated to implement a fresh management strategy which resulted in a gain of over 5% of customers. In the last two years I have successfully lead a team of 20 people to build a very innovating product, called Afradan.

In addition to my experience, I also possess an Economics degree with Bs. 2.2, where I also followed a course on statistical methodology. I could broaden this theoretical knowledge in a summer internship where I had to process the results of a market study statistically.

I would be very contented to be able to work in an expanding company like yours. I trust that you will consider my application favourably and grant me an interview. I am available for an interview at your convenience.

Yours sincerely

Gregory Moreer, Research Executive
